Questions for the Administrators

To start, could each of you say how you view your role in the transition planning process?

What do you see as the benefits to college-based transition services?

Why is this option a good one for students with ID?

What is the biggest obstacle you face in supporting students with disabilities to set and achieve postsecondary goals at college or in the community?

Could you share a triumph with the audience, please?

How do you engage and motivate the other members of the transition planning team?

Finally, what advice do you have for future administrators or teacher leaders?

Help US to help YOU.

Our job is to support those who support students with ID to go to college. If you know of resources that would be helpful for administrators to have, or you want to help us reach school administrators, please let us know. We also welcome you to submit publication ideas.
